Key Takeaways

Key African busbar manufacturers include BUSBAR SERVICES, POLYBAR, and D J Busbar, offering locally produced low and medium voltage busbar systems with installation support. Leading Manufacturers

BUSBAR SERVICES is one of Africa's leading busbar manufacturers, providing a wide range of low voltage (LV) and medium voltage (MV) systems, including lighting, sandwich, cast resin, IPB, SPB, and NSPB busbars. They also specialize in DC electro-winning busbars for the mining industry and offer bespoke solutions tailored to client requirements, from concept to commissioning . POLYBAR (operated by Busbar Installations) manufactures busbar trunking systems entirely from local content in South Africa. Their products are designed for commercial and industrial power distribution, offering advantages such as reduced voltage drop, space savings, and flexibility in load center positioning. POLYBAR also provides in-house engineering, installation, and a two-year guarantee . D J Busbar focuses on Canalis busbar systems and has extensive experience in manufacturing and installation. They produce busbars locally in South Africa using copper and aluminum conductors, with ratings from 800A to 5,200A (KG) and up to 4,700A (KH), and approximately 98% local content. Their team provides CAD-based design and specialized components for complex projects .

Market Insights

The African busbar market is growing, with countries like Nigeria, Kenya, and Egypt investing in local production to reduce import dependency and support industrial growth. Local manufacturing enhances self-sufficiency, creates jobs, and supports the development of electrical infrastructure for commercial and industrial applications .

Additional Manufacturers

Other notable South African manufacturers include ACDC Dynamics, EM, Switchboard Group, Allbro, and RWW, which provide busbar supports, switchgear, and power distribution solutions suitable for both low and medium voltage applications .

Summary

For small busbar manufacturing in Africa, BUSBAR SERVICES, POLYBAR, and D J Busbar are key players offering locally produced, customizable, and reliable busbar systems. These companies provide full engineering, manufacturing, and installation services, making them suitable for commercial, industrial, and mining applications. Expanding local production in countries like Nigeria, Kenya, and Egypt is also creating new opportunities for sourcing busbar systems within Africa.
