Key Takeaways

To obtain a quotation for a Variable Frequency Drive (VFD), you can contact manufacturers or distributors directly via their sales or pre-sale teams, providing your application details and specifications. How to Request a VFD Quotation

- Identify Your Requirements Before requesting a quote, gather key information about your application:
- Motor type and power rating (HP or kW)
- Voltage and frequency requirements
- Load type (pump, fan, conveyor, HVAC, etc.)
- Control features needed (e.g., speed control, torque control, safety functions)
- Environmental conditions (indoor/outdoor, temperature, humidity)
- Contact Manufacturers or Distributors Many VFD manufacturers provide dedicated channels for quotations:
- Eaton: Contact their Drives Pre-Sale Team via email at QuotationsVFD@Eaton.com or by phone at 877-ETN-CARE (options 2, 7, 1) to request a tailored quote for your application.

- ABB: Use the ABB Drive & Motor selector on their website to choose your country, industry, application, and power level, then request a quote through their local sales network .
- Yaskawa: Reach out via their website to request product information or a quotation for standard or custom VFD solutions .
- Sumitomo Drive Technologies: Contact their sales or aftermarket specialists for quotes on VFDs, gearmotors, or speed reducers .
- Provide Detailed Application Information When requesting a quotation, include:
 - Desired VFD model or specifications
 - Quantity required
 - Delivery location and timeline
 - Any additional options (e.g., enclosures, communication modules, safety features)
- Compare Offers After receiving quotations, compare:
 - Price and warranty
 - Technical specifications and compatibility
 - Support and service options
- Delivery and lead times By following these steps, you can obtain accurate and competitive quotations for VFDs tailored to your specific industrial or commercial needs.
